SENATOR KNOX, GUEST

J. Hampton Moore Entertains. Pennsylvanians.

PROMINENT MEN GATHEBED

President Fairbanks and Spenker Connon Among Those Entertained-Glowing Tribute/Paid Memory of McKinley by the Keystone State's Junior Senator.

The greatness of Pennsylvania, and the deeds of her sons from the time of settlement by William Penn to the present day, were lauded, and the achievements of her great leaders were perpetuated last night at the dinner in the Raleigh hoted. The function was given to United States Senator Philander C. Knox and the Pennsylvania delegation in Congress, by the State Representative on the Republican National Congressional Committee, Representative J. Hampton Moore.

Seated around the guests' table, to the frent, right, and left of the host, were men from all walks of life, among them, Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks, Senator Knox, Speaker Joseph G. Cannon, Representative H. C. Loudenslager, Representative W. Bourke Cockran, Representative Francis W. Cushman, Rudolph Blankenburg, and Gustav Kues-

In introducing Senator Knox, Mr. Moore said that every American having pride in this country may be pardoned for upholding the dignity of his State as it participates in the general welfare.

"Pennsylvania," Mr. Moore said, "is one of the greatest States in the Union which has never unduly exalted herself." He then introduced Senator Knex.

Tribute to Mckinley.

Senator Knox paid a glowing tribute to President McKinley. He told of the martyr's great love for his fellow-country "It was a great pleasure to know Mr. McKinley," said Senator Knox, "and the last time I was with him, I was afforded great pleasure.'

Mr. Knox said it was no accident that the Declaration of Independence descended from Pennsylvania soil. In the legislature of 1780 the first declaration even made against slavery was drawn up by that wonderful man, Tom Payne.

It is not to be wondered at, according to Senator Knox, that from this great State of Pennsylvania two great charters should spring. He told how Morris defeated the bill in the first meeting of Congress to keep the National Capital from coming to Philadelphia on the ground that it would injure the commercial interests of Philadelphia.

In closing, Senator Knox paid a glowing tribute to Representative Moore, who, he said, was a great Pennsylvanian and worthy of the great gifts of his constitu-
